

Springer is seeking qualified candidates to apply for the position of Co-Editor-in-Chief for the journal, Head and Neck Pathology, the official Journal of the North American Society of Head and Neck Pathology. Head and Neck Pathology presents scholarly papers, reviews and symposia that cover the spectrum of human surgical pathology within the anatomic zones of the oral cavity, sinonasal tract, larynx, hypopharynx, oropharynx, salivary gland, ear and temporal bone, and neck, along with selected thyroid and parathyroid topics. The Journal publishes rapid developments in new diagnostic criteria, intraoperative consultation, immunohistochemical studies, molecular techniques, genetic analyses, diagnostic aids, radiographic imaging, and application of uniform terminology to allow practitioners to continue to maintain and expand their knowledge in the subspecialty of head and neck pathology. Coverage of practical application to daily clinical practice is supported with proceedings and symposia from international academies and societies devoted to this field.

The Journal publishes four issues per year and utilizes an online manuscript submission and peer-review system. A special issue and the proceedings of the North American Society of Head and Neck Pathology are included in the annual line-up. The Co-Editor-in-Chief will serve a three year term and share responsibility for managing the editorial content and leading the strategic direction of the Journal. The Co-Editor-in-Chief is responsible for acquiring, reviewing and collating manuscripts for publication and shall work with Springer to produce a timely and informative publication. The Co-Editor-in-Chief will appoint supporting editors and an editorial board that represent global and diverse expertise in the field of head and neck pathology. The Co-Editor-in-Chief will be responsible for meeting with the Editorial Board and Publisher on an annual basis to report on the progress of the Journal.

Applicants should be actively engaged in the practice, teaching, or research of oral, maxillofacial and head and neck pathology with an outstanding publication record and high international regard and recognition. Successful applicants will have experience as an editor, associate editor, or productive editorial board member for a peer-reviewed journal. The applicant must be comfortable working with electronic technology in order to expedite review and publication of submitted manuscripts, including photoediting, spreadsheets and word processing software. The initial term of service for this position is from January 1, 2019 through December 31, 2021. The Co-Editor-in-Chief will be compensated for time and effort devoted to the Journal. Springer will also sponsor the annual Editorial Board meeting.

|

Those interested in applying for the position of Co-Editor-in-Chief should submit an application that includes the following no later than Friday, June 1, 2018:

-A curriculum vitae

-A succinct letter of interest and qualifications that addresses how the candidate will accommodate the time demands of editing the Journal

-A vision statement of 700 words or less for the next three years of publication of Head and Neck Pathology. The statement should address the primary aims for the direction of the Journal; the organization and responsibilities of the editorial board; types of content and editorial features.

Applications and questions should be submitted by email to melissa.ramondetta@springer.com.