

Head and Neck Pathologist UT MD Anderson Cancer Center

The University of Texas MD Anderson Cancer Center, ranked No. 1 nationwide for cancer care, seeks a full-time Head and Neck Pathologist at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor to join a world-renowned team in the Department of Anatomical Pathology. The candidate should have completed a minimum one-year fellowship training in Head and Neck pathology.

Board certification or eligibility in Anatomic Pathology or Anatomic Pathology/Clinical Pathology is a requirement, as is an active Texas medical license or eligibility. This position provides an excellent opportunity to specialize in Head and Neck Pathology and collaborate with other head and neck specialized medical professionals, including surgeons, oncologists, radiation therapists, and endocrinologists, to provide enhanced patient care and clinical trials. These relationships improve patient outcomes and offer excellent opportunities for breakthrough research, advancing guidelines and the practice of pathology. The candidate's major responsibility will be to participate in the routine sign-out activities of a high volume of oncology specimens. In addition, the candidate will be willing to participate in general and frozen sections, multidisciplinary clinical conferences, and equitable call coverage. The successful candidate will have an interest and participate in education, clinical/translational research, and clinical trial collaborative research. Rank and salary commensurate with experience and academic credentials. Excellent Benefits package.

The University of Texas MD Anderson Cancer Center is a smoke-free environment and an equal opportunity employer. Women and minority candidates are encouraged to apply. Curriculum vitae, names and addresses of at least three references, and brief synopsis of experience and career goals should be sent to:
